Background information:

Estonia is currently analysing possible changes in national law concerning possibilities for submission of application for temporary residence permit. In order to apply for a temporary residence permit in Estonia a third country national shall submit an application for a temporary residence permit personally at a foreign mission of Estonia. A foreign mission of Estonia shall send it to the Estonian Police and Border Guard Board for proceedings after the person has been identified or the identity verified and, if necessary, after the taking of biometrical data. As an exception, certain favoured groups of third country nationals may submit an application for temporary residence permit in Estonia. We are interested to know how the submission of application for initial temporary residence permit is regulated in other Member States. We apologize for the short deadline and kindly ask you to provide your answers to the following questions:

Questions

- 1) Is a third country national obliged to submit an application for initial temporary residence permit at a foreign mission?
- 2) Is it possible for a third country national to submit an application for initial temporary residence permit in the Member State? If yes, please provide information about who are entitled to do it and on what conditions can a third country national submit an application for temporary residence permit in the Member State.
- 3) Is it possible to submit an application for initial temporary residence permit electronically? If yes, please specify who are entitled to do it and on what conditions can it be done.

	Austria	Yes	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Yes, with certain exceptions (Art. 21 Settlement and Residence Act).2. According to Art. 21 para 2 and para 3 Settlement and Residence Act, in particular the following third-country nationals are entitled to submit their initial application in Austria:<ul style="list-style-type: none">- Foreigners within six months after the termination of their legal settlement in Austria, if their settlement did not require a permit or a documentation;

			<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Foreigners within six months after the loss of Austrian citizenship, Swiss citizenship or citizenship of a member state to the European Economic Area; - Family Members who are entitled to visa-exempt entry during their visa-exempt stay; - Foreigners who apply for a temporary residence permit as researcher and their family members after having legally entered the federal territory during their lawful stay; - Certain groups of persons applying for a temporary residence permit for students after having legally entered the federal territory during their lawful stay; - Unaccompanied minors in the best interest of the child; - Persons, whose right to private and family life under Art. 8 ECHR would otherwise be violated. 3. No. According to Art. 6 Regulation on the Implementation of the Settlement and Residence Act, the required documents have to be produced in the original.
	Belgium	Yes	1. In principle, yes. Article 9 of the Law of 15 December 1980 on the entry, residence, settlement and removal of foreign nationals (hereafter: the Immigration Law) stipulates that, save as otherwise provided in an international treaty, a law or a royal decree, third country nationals wishing to reside in Belgium for a period exceeding 3 months, have to apply for a residence permit at the competent Belgian diplomatic or consular post in their place of residence or stay abroad. 2. Although the general legal rule in Belgium is that a request for a residence permit needs to be submitted at the diplomatic / consular post abroad, third-country nationals can change their residence status in country to almost any possible other residence status, as long as the TCN is in legal stay at the moment of filing the request and meets the eligibility conditions that are linked to the immigration status that he/she wants to obtain: Article 25/2 of the Royal Decree of 8 October 1981 implementing the Immigration Law, provides for the possibility for foreign nationals to apply for a residence permit in Belgium, provided that: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The foreign national is staying legally in Belgium at the moment of filing the application (this can either be a short stay or a long stay exceeding 3 months).

			<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The foreign national meets all the conditions linked to the residence permit he/she is applying for. Articles 26 and 26/2 of the above mentioned Royal Decree stipulate that foreign nationals can apply in Belgium for the status of family member of a TCN who is already legally residing in Belgium, provided that: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The foreign national is staying legally in Belgium at the moment of filing the application (this can either be a short stay or a long stay exceeding 3 months). - The foreign national meets all the conditions linked to the residence permit he/she is applying for, such as status of family member of a TCN who already has an unlimited right of residence in Belgium (art. 10 of the Immigration Law), status of family member of a TCN who already has a temporary residency right in Belgium (art. 10bis of the Immigration Law), etc. Furthermore, art. 9bis of the Immigration Law stipulates that - in exceptional circumstances - a foreign national can submit an application for a residence permit directly in Belgium (based on humanitarian grounds). Finally, art. 9ter of the Immigration Law stipulates that a foreign national who suffers from a disease that constitutes a real risk to his/her life or physical integrity or for which there is a real risk of inhuman or degrading treatment when there is no adequate treatment in his/her country of origin or residence, can also apply for a residence permit in Belgium. 3. 	Netherlands	Yes	1. Third country nationals who need a Provisional Residence Permit need to approach the Dutch Embassy or Consulate in their country of origin or the country in which they are staying. A Provisional Residence Permit is a visa with which a third country national can enter the Netherlands for a stay of longer than 90 days. A third country national from Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand, the United States of America, South Korea, Monaco, Vatican City, the EU/EEA countries or Switzerland does not need a Provisional Residence Permit. All other third country nationals need a Provisional Residence Permit. The conditions for an initial temporary residence permit will be assessed at the same time as the conditions of the Regular Provisional Residence Permit. In fact, when applying for a provisional residence permit the foreigner also applies for an initial residence permit. If the application for a Provisional Residence Permit has been granted, the foreigner will be issued a residence permit after arrival in the Netherlands. No further application is required. It is also possible that a sponsor residing in the Netherlands submits an application for initial temporary residence in the Netherlands for the third country national who needs a Regular Provisional Residence Permit. 2. Third country nationals who do not need a Provisional Residence Permit, can submit an application for initial temporary residence permit in the Netherlands. The application form, the appendices and the requested evidence can be send to the Immigration and Naturalisation Service (IND) by post. After the application is submitted, the applicant will receive a letter containing the amount of fees and information on how to pay. It is also possible to visit the IND Desk in person in order to submit the application for a residence permit. The applicant can pay the fees at the IND Desk. An overview of exemptions and requirements for the Provisional Residence Permit can be found here: https://ind.nl/EN/individuals/residence-wizard/procedure/Pages/default.aspx#paragraph1 3. For some residence permits it is possible to submit an application for a temporary residence electronically; highly skilled migrant and accompanying family, scientific research worker and accompanying family, au pair, exchange. Only a recognised sponsor can submit the application and has to provide the requested evidence.

Excluding asylum applications most of the other categories have the opportunity to apply electronically. Details can be reached via the web site of The Swedish Migrations Agency (www.migrationsverket.se). After an electronically made application there are some formalities that might result in the necessity to visit a Swedish foreign mission for example to be interviewed in a case regarding family ties. A full digitally process is not yet available.
	United Kingdom	Yes	1. Most third country nationals coming to the UK to take employment are required to obtain visas before they enter but there are exceptions (see question 2). Applicants in family routes require visas for initial entry. 2. Yes, in the following employment categories: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Creative and sportspeople from countries whose nationals don't always require a visa for the UK coming here for up to three months under Tier 5 of the Points-Based System. - Seamen coming to the UK to change ship or to disembark from a ship to be repatriated, or to join a ship if they are: a) A holder of a valid identity document issued under ILO Convention 108, or b) From a country whose nationals don't always require a visa for the UK - Offshore workers from a country whose nationals don't always require a visa for the UK - Locally engaged, non-diplomatic staff of diplomatic missions from a country whose nationals don't always require a visa for the UK - Aircrew from a country whose nationals don't always require a visa for the UK who are staying in the UK for more than seven days but less than six months. 3. All applicants are required to apply electronically from abroad on the UK Visas website unless they are in North Korea, but they must also visit one of the UK's network of visa application centres to provide their biometrics. It is not possible to do so, however, in the employment categories listed in our answer to question 2 while in the UK.

	Norway	Yes	1. The main rule is that the third country national must submit an application for his or her initial/first time residence permit at a foreign mission. 2. A TCN can submit their first time residence permit in Norway (temporary) on certain conditions (see section 10-1 of the Norwegian Immigration Regulations): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Applicant has legal stay in Norway. - Applicant belongs to a group that is entitled to submit their first time applications in Norway. (see groups below) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> o Asylum seekers awaiting a decision, or who are waiting to exit Norway after a rejected asylum application are not entitled to apply. (though this does not apply to the spouse, cohabitant, child or parent of Norwegian child) Exemptions can be made (allowing other applications from Norway) on the basis of strong grounds of reasonableness, but administrative practice is very strict. In cases where the applicant does not meet the conditions for applying from Norway, (and is expected to apply from abroad) the application is rejected, for formal reasons. The entitled groups mentioned above are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - a foreign national who is a qualified skilled worker,(see Norwegian Immigration Act section 6-1, first paragraph) - seasonal workers, (see section 6-3) - a spouse, cohabitant, child or adopted child of a person who has a permanent residence permit, a permit that constitutes a basis for a permanent residence permit or a permit as employed by an international company. In the case of spouses and cohabitants, it is a condition that the basis for the stay is not a Schengen visa or a visa granted on humanitarian grounds or that the basis for the stay is an equivalent visa issued by another Schengen country. If the applicant is a child, documentary evidence must be presented to show that the sponsor has joint parental responsibility for the child. If the sponsor does
