Disclaimer:

The following responses have been provided primarily for the purpose of information exchange among EMN NCPs in the framework of the EMN. The contributing EMN NCPs have provided, to the best of their knowledge, information that is up-to-date, objective and reliable. Note, however, that the information provided does not necessarily represent the official policy of an EMN NCPs' Member State.

Background information:

The Commission (DG Home) has undertaken a study whose purpose is to assess the need and the possibilities for creating a repository of "documents for long stay or residence" granted to TCNs (Third Country Nationals) within the Schengen area and whether VIS could be the solution or whether another solution needs to be sought (obviously a new repository as the other two systems – SIS and Eurodac - are even more remote from the purpose to be met). The legal basis for granting the documents is not to be changed but information on the issued documents would be shared at EU level. Therefore a number of questions are asked on how that information can be collected and updated.

Questions

1. 1. Long-stay visas: (a) Does your country issue long-stay visas? If yes for which duration? (b) Which authorities are in charge of handling the applications for long-stay visas from the moment the application is submitted till the moment the visa is granted? (c) Does your country have an IT system(s) to collect the information on the long-stay visa application and on the different stages until a visa is granted and issued? (d) Does your country use the same IT system used to collect information on withdrawal and renewal of long-stay visas?
2. 2. Residence permits: (a) Does your country issue residence permits only or its territory or also outside (in consulates/embassies)? (b) Which authorities are in charge of handling the applications for residence permits from the moment the application is submitted till the moment the permit is granted? (c) Does your country have an IT system(s) to collect the information on the application and on the different stages until a residence permit is granted and issued? (d) Does your country use the same IT system used to collect information on withdrawal and renewal of residence permits?
3. 3. Residence cards: (a) Which authorities are in charge of handling the requests for residence cards from the moment the request is made till the moment the card is issued? (b) Does your country have an IT system(s) to collect the information on the request and on the different stages until a card is issued? (c) Does your country use the same IT system used to collect information on withdrawal and renewal of residence cards?

	Belgium	Yes	1. (a) Yes, from 3 months up to one year depending on reason of stay or the duration of the activity (b) The application for a long-stay visa can only be made before the Belgian diplomatic or consular mission in the country of origin or country of stay (or the diplomatic or consular mission of another Member State that represents Belgium in that country). In specified cases, the visa application is examined and the visa granted automatically by the embassy or consulate, but mostly a formal authorization has to be given by the Belgian Immigration Office that further examines the visa application. The visa itself is always delivered to the applicant by the embassy or consulate which attaches a visa sticker in the passport of the applicant. Some visa applications can also be handled by the Belgian Federal Public Service Foreign Affairs, for example visas for diplomats (Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations). (c) Yes, there is an electronic shared platform with the Belgian Federal Public Service Foreign Affairs, embassies and consulates and the Belgian Immigration Office, called VISANET. VISANET shows what is the status of the application, what documents were submitted, and further general info and commentaries. The documents are transmitted by diplomatic courier and electronically. There is a separate system (Belvisa) for transmitting the applications and decisions. (d) No, a separate system (Belvisa) is used. Withdrawals of visa are made by the embassy or consulate if the person is still abroad; by border security, the Belgian Federal Public Service Foreign Affairs or the Belgian Immigration Office if the person is already in Belgium. If the person is in Belgium, renewals of visa are (after approval of the Belgian Immigration Office) made by the Belgian Federal Public Service Foreign Affairs. 2. (a) Residence permits (authorizations that allow a foreigner to stay in Belgium for more than 3 months) are only issued on the Belgian territory. (b) The municipalities collect all applications and can in some cases grant a residence permit automatically (for example to EU citizens who want to perform a self-employed activity and have the required documents, or to third-country national employees who have the required documents). In other cases, a formal authorization has to be given by the Belgian Immigration Office in Brussels that further examines the application. Applications for special residence permits are handled and these permits are granted by the Belgian Federal Public Service Foreign Affairs. (c) The actor that takes the final decision (municipality, Belgian Immigration Office, Belgian Federal Public Service Foreign Affairs) can collect the information on the application and on the different stages until a residence permit is granted and issued. These actors have internal and non-shared IT systems. If the application for a residence permit is handled and the permit granted by the municipality, a copy of the application with the commentary that a residence permit was

			granted, is sent to the Belgian Immigration Office for notice. (d) No, a separate system (EVIBEL) is used. The decision to withdraw a residence permit (legal decision) is always taken by the Belgian Immigration Office. 3. (a) Residence cards are only issued on the Belgian territory by the municipalities. The municipalities handle the requests for residence cards from the moment the request is made till the moment the card is issued. (b) Separate information about residence cards is collected both in BELPIC (photograph, biometrical data of the holder of the card...) and in the Official Population Register (history of cards, duplicate, validity of the card...) . (c) If a residence card is withdrawn or renewed this is shown in the Official Population Register in the form of a technical suppression of the card (withdrawal + mention: “loss of”) or a new entry (renewal)

(b) Which authorities are in charge of handling the applications for residence permits from the moment the application is submitted till the moment the permit is granted? The UK Home Office manages applications for residence permits through UKVI (United Kingdom Visas and Immigration). (c) Does your country have an IT system(s) to collect the information on the application and on the different stages until a residence permit is granted and issued? Home Office staff use two IT case working systems to collect the information required to issue a residence permit. For those applying for a residence permit from outside the UK, Home Office staff used a case working system called Proviso, which passes information back daily into a central database, CRS (Central Reference System). CRS is available through a restricted Government Intranet to staff of the Home Office as well as other Departments involved in immigration control, law enforcement and national security. UKVI staff overseas check all visa applications against the Warnings Index. For those applying for a residence permit from within the UK, Home Office staff use a case working system called CID (Case Information Database). Again UKVI staff check all applications against the Warnings Index. A separate IT system, connected to the two case working systems, is used for the actual production of residence permits. (d) Does your country use the same IT system used to collect information on withdrawal and renewal of residence permits? The Home Office staff uses the same IT systems (Proviso and CID) in conjunction with a Residence Permit IT Production and Management system for collecting information on the withdrawal and renewal of residence permits.

3. (a) Which authorities are in charge of handling the requests for residence cards from the moment the request is made till the moment the card is issued?
