			2. There is a specific application form which can be downloaded from the internet at www.migri.fi or acquired from the Police or the Finnish Immigration Service. The application is then left with the local police in Finland. If there are any co-applicants, they should be present when leaving the application to the local police station. 3. The granting of Finnish citizenship by application is discretionary. Citizenship can be granted even if some requirements are not met. On the other hand, citizenship can be denied even if all requirements stipulated by law have been met. Citizenship can be denied even if all requirements stipulated by law have been met. Nationality may be denied if the applicant has committed a crime or has been under a restraining order. If not disqualify, the committed crime may postpone the naturalisation for a period of time. Also material failure to pay maintenance, taxes or fines may also disqualify the applicant from naturalisation. The seriousness of such failure will be based on whether the failure was due to applicant's unwillingness or an inability to pay. 4. While considering the probity-condition, the fines that have followed the offences during the last six years are taken into account. Also prison sentences are take into account for a longer than six years period. The perpetration of crimes or being under a restraining order is not absolute barrier to citizenship if it is justified to depart from the probity-condition. Consideration will be given to facts like elapsed time, the severity of punishment and the quality of the act. In addition, repeated criminal offences may lead to rejection. An applicant may also be designated a waiting period after which his or her application will be reconsidered. A co-applicant under 15 years of age may be granted Finnish citizenship if his/her actual home and residence is in Finland. A co-applicant who is 15 years or older may be granted Finnish citizenship if: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • he/she has been living in Finland for the last four years, or • he/she has been living in Finland for a total of six years since his/her seventh birthday. Other requirements are the same as for an applicant who is 18 years or older (see above). If a minor under 15 years of age has lodged an application for naturalisation, one must reside in Finland. There are no other requirements (such as knowledge of Finnish language). Minor who is 15 years or older should have resided in Finland for four years (or total of six years after one's 7th birthday with the last two years continuously and without interruption). He or she would also have to fulfil the language requirement mentioned above. As an applicant 15 years or older is subject to criminal liability, criminal offences committed would have the same effect as with adults. A minor as a co-applicant may be rejected or designated a waiting period regardless of his or her co-applicants with a positive decision. An applicant under 15 years of age could not be rejected due to civic conduction.

		Discretionary naturalisation If a legal entitlement for naturalisation does not exist, the naturalisation may, however, still be possible. While the foreigner has no right to naturalisation, the authority can, nevertheless, approve the naturalisation. The following basic requirements must be met: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Required is the submission of an application 2. Grounds for an extradition, such as for a criminal offense, may not exist. 3. The means of subsistence (accommodation + maintenance) must be guaranteed. The applicant must be able to provide for himself and his family, either through own employment or other assets. If you receive public funds (such as German unemployment benefit II or social welfare) a naturalisation is only possible in exceptional cases. An exception would be given in the case of particular hardship. For instance then, if the foreign nationality had been waived in a running naturalization process and one had subsequently become unemployed involuntarily. Cases of hardship are also possible with elderly persons that had resided for many years and with disabled persons. In its discretionary decision, the naturalisation authority shall, in particular, take into account the extent of integration of the applicant in Germany, as well as language skills, work in unincorporated associations, work, etc. Re 3 (Grounds for denial of naturalisation) Capability to maintain livelihood A right of naturalisation does not exist, if either German unemployment benefits II or social welfare is received; it would suffice, if these benefits could be drawn. Naturalisation in the case of criminal offences A conviction for a serious crime makes the naturalisation impossible. This also applies - in principle – to convictions in other countries. After a period of several years, a naturalisation is once again possible, if the crime has been deleted from the Federal Central Registry. Minor convictions do not preclude naturalisation, if the following penalties had been imposed: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Educational measures or disciplinary measures in accordance with the (German) Juvenile Court Act - Fines of up to 180 daily rates or - Prison sentences of up to 6 months, if they were suspended and the penalty was issued after the expiry of the probation period. In the case of higher penalties, the naturalisation authority can still naturalise in individual instances.

	Greece	Yes	1. Aliens who want to acquire the Greek citizenship by naturalization have to pay a relevant fee and they must fulfill the following preconditions: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - They must be adults at the time of the application - They must not have been irrevocably sentenced in the last ten years before the application for certain crimes. - They don't have any pending judgments for deportation against them. - They must have lawfully resided in Greece for a total of 10 years in the last twelve- year period. - They must have adequate knowledge of the Greek language, history and culture. Aliens submit an application to the Municipality of their residence accompanied by the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Declaration of naturalization before the Mayor in the presence of two Greek nationals as witnesses. - An application fee - Copy of passport or other travel document - Residence permit or other evidence of legitimate residence in the country - Birth certificate - Income tax statement for the latest financial year. 2. The application is submitted to the Municipality of residence of the interested party and if all the needed documents are included it is sent to Region for examination. If the all above mentioned preconditions are met the applicant is invited by the Region to submit more documentary evidence (criminal record certificate, certificate of non – deportation and any other information required). Then the file is forwarded to the Ministry of Interior, Decentralization and e-Government along with the opinion of the Police on matters of public order and security. Inside the Ministry there is a Naturalization Committee which is responsible to invite the alien to an interview to ascertain his/her knowledge of the Greek language, history and culture. After this and bearing in mind all the documentary evidence the Committee express its opinion to the Minister who is the competent for the final decision either positive or negative. 3. The application is immediately being rejected if the alien does not fulfill the above mentioned preconditions or there is lack of the required documentation. However, the application still can be rejected even if all the preconditions are met, without justification.

			§ Legal certificate confirming that the applicant has been legally residing in Portuguese territory for at least 6 years (document conveyed directly between official departments) § Certificate of Criminal Record Status issued by the authorities of the country of origin, of the country of nationality and of those countries where the applicant has resided before. The Portuguese Certificate of Criminal Record Status is obtained directly between departments. § Identification document (residence permit or passport). The procedure for obtaining Portuguese nationality is paid for. 2. A specific form, duly filled in, together with the above-mentioned documents, can be delivered to the bureaus of the Central Civil Registry, or to any Local Civil Registry Office, or posted to the Central Civil Registry. The applications are then assessed by the Central Civil Registry services that ask for the relevant information from the Criminal Police (Polícia Judiciária) and from the Immigration and Borders Service (SEF). Once the procedure is concluded an opinion on the grounds for the request is issued, and then, provided the opinion is favourable, submitted to final decision by the Minister of Justice. In case of acceptance, a transcription of the applicant's birth certificate is made, thus creating a Portuguese Birth Registration, and the respective acquisition of Portuguese nationality by naturalization is registered on this Portuguese Birth Registration. 3. In Portugal civil conduct does not, in itself, represent sufficient grounds for denial. The request can be denied if the interested party: § Has not been living in Portugal for, at least, 6 years; § Has no sufficient command of the Portuguese language; § Has been convicted of a felony punishable with imprisonment penalty of 3 years or more, according to the Portuguese legal framework. The application may also be dismissed outright for lack of formal requirements legally demanded, or for lack of documents that prove the facts that ground the decision (with the exception of those documents that are obtained internally within the administration by the respective department). 4. As mentioned in point 3, in Portugal civil conduct is not, in itself, grounds for rejecting the application. However, in terms of criminal liability, the application may get suspended for a period of 5 years, from the moment when a conviction for a felony committed by the interested party transits in res judicatam, provided such felony or felonies, in accordance to the Portuguese legal framework, is punishable with more than a year imprisonment, either individually or cumulatively. As regards minors, currently the Law allows naturalization of foreign underage citizens, who were born in Portuguese territory, who have sufficient command of the Portuguese language and one parent legally residing in the country for at least 5 years or, alternatively to this last requisite, if the minor concluded in this country the first cycle of basic learning. As for minors who are criminally liable (over 16 years of age) they must also supply a copy of their criminal record, in accordance to the afore-mentioned provisions.

		Generally the following documentation is required when you apply for a Swedish citizenship: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - A registration certificate from the Swedish Tax authority - Passport or a national id-card (from your native country) - A certificate from your employer When a person applies for Swedish citizenship, the Migration Board collects data from the enforcement service (debts), the Social Insurance Office (maintenance/alimony debts), the National Police Board (crimes or suspected offences) and the Swedish Security Service (security checks). 2. The Migration Board is the body that considers applications for Swedish citizenship and takes decisions (naturalisation). Notification forms in the case of non-Nordic citizens are sent to the Migration Board. If you are a citizen of Denmark, Finland, Iceland or Norway, you send your notification to the county administrative board (länsstyrelsen) in the area where you live. 3. If you wish to become a Swedish citizen by application, you must meet the following requirements: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You must be able to prove your identity. • You must be at least 18 years of age. • You must have a permanent residence permit. or - if you are a citizen of the European Economic Area (EEA) - a permanent right of residence. This does not apply to citizens of the Nordic countries. For citizens of the EEA countries, limited residence permits of at least five years' duration are equated with a Swedish permanent residence right. • You must have been living in Sweden for at least five years, or for at least four years if you are stateless or a refugee. If you are a Danish, Finnish, Icelandic or Norwegian citizen, two years will suffice. • You must have a clean record in Sweden. 4. One of the conditions for acquiring Swedish citizenship by application is that you have kept a clean record during your stay here. If you have committed a criminal offence, however, you can still become a Swedish citizen, although you will have to wait for a while depending on how serious the crime was and what punishment you were given. When we examine someone's conduct we consider how they have behaved so far and how we believe they are likely to behave in the future. The time that must elapse after a criminal conviction before you can be granted Swedish citizenship is called the qualifying period (karenstid). This is normally calculated from the date of the crime, but if you have been given a lengthy prison sentence the time is calculated from the date when the sentence has been served. Before convicted persons can be granted Swedish citizenship, they must have served their prison sentence, their probationary period in the event of a conditional release must have been completed and any fines they may have been sentenced to must have been paid.

			a. be aged 18 or over; and b. not be of unsound mind; and c. be of good character; and d. have sufficient knowledge of English, Welsh or Scottish Gaelic; and e. have sufficient knowledge about life in the United Kingdom; and f. intend to have his or her home (or main home if there is more than one) in the United Kingdom. The person applying may, however, live abroad if he or she plans to go into, or continue in Crown service working directly for the Government of the United Kingdom, if he or she plans to work with an international organisation of which the United Kingdom is a member, or work for a company or association established in the United Kingdom; and g. meet the residential requirements set out below. The residential requirements are that: a. the person applying was in the United Kingdom at the beginning of the five-year period that ended on the date the application is received; and b. in that five-year period, he or she was not outside the United Kingdom for more than 450 days; and c. in the last twelve months of that five-year period, he or she was not outside the United Kingdom for more than 90 days; and d. in the last 12 months of that five-year period, his or her stay in the United Kingdom was not subject to any time limit under the immigration laws; and e. he or she was not, at any time in that five-year period, in the United Kingdom in breach of the immigration laws. A person who is married to or the civil partner of a British citizen needs to meet the same requirements, but only needs to have been resident in the United Kingdom for three years (with not more than 270 days absence). The future intentions requirement, and the requirement to have been free of immigration restrictions for 12 months before applying do not apply. Documentation is required to establish that these requirements are met. These are principally: evidence of identity (usually passport), evidence that the residence requirements are met (usually passports), marriage or civil partnership certificate, confirmation of immigration status, evidence that the person has either passed the “citizenship test” or completed a course. 2. Place for carrying out the procedures All applications are considered by the Nationality Group of the UK Border Agency , in Liverpool. Applications can be submitted in two ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - by making a postal application - by submitting the application at a local register office, where the form and documents will be checked and forwarded. Once the application has been approved, the person becomes a citizen on swearing an oath and pledge at a citizenship ceremony. Ceremonies are held locally and administered by register offices. 3. Grounds for denial (lack of residence or integration, civic conduct) Applications can be refused for a number of reasons, such as

			<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - the applicant had excess absences in the qualifying period (there is some discretion to waive absences over the permitted limits) - the applicant was not free of immigration time restrictions - the applicant had been in breach of the immigration rules in the residential qualifying period - the applicant was not of good character - the applicant did not have sufficient knowledge of language or life in the United Kingdom - the applicant's future intentions were not clearly in the UK (this does not apply to spouses and civil partners of British citizens). 4. Specificities for the denial of nationality for civic conduct. Level of requirements. Requirements for minors Applications from those over the age of 10 are subject to criminal records checks. We would not normally expect to grant citizenship to a person with a conviction that is not spent under the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act. This includes those who have been to prison and those with non-custodial sentences. Checks are also made with other government departments, to see if there are any factors that would prevent a person from meeting the good character requirement.
